HINT OSWALD REPORT MAY BE DICTATED

Administration's Hand Seen

BY PHILIP WARDEN

(Chicago Tribune Press Service)

Washington, June 5—A suspicion that the administration wants to dictate the conclusions of the Warren commission on the Kennedy assassination is greatly disturbing commission members, it was disclosed today.

The White House and state department, for diplomatic reasons, reportedly are adamant that the commission say when it issues its final report that:

1. Lee Harvey Oswald had no accomplices when the fatal shots were fired in Dallas, Tex. last Nov. 22, killing President Kennedy.

2. There was no foreign [Russian or communist Cuban] involvement in the assassination plot.

Statement by Commission

Newspapers frequently chosen by the Johnson administration for the hoisting of trial balloons began carrying stories that Oswald had no accomplices and that there was no foreign involvement before the Warren commission could even set up shop, members reported.

The first of these stories, which commission members said obviously had been planted, appeared last December before the commission completed the appointment of its staff. They have been appearing ever since.

This week a rash of them appeared in newspapers from coast to coast. The commission met in special session and then issued this tersely worded statement:

Disturbed Over Stories

"The commission is nearing the conclusion of the taking of testimony and is giving thought to the content and form of its report. The commission has reached no final conclusions and has not discussed final conclusions as a commission."

Members said after the meeting that the commission was very disturbed over the appearance of the stories that it had reached certain definite conclusions.

Some commission members suspect high officials of planting the stories as a part of the administration's present foreign policy of "playing it cozy" with Soviet Russia.

Chief Justice Earl Warren, who heads the seven-man commission, President Johnson appointed to make a complete investigation of the assassination, sees the need of collecting more information before the commission reaches any conclusions, a spokesman said.

Going to Dallas Tomorrow

The commission took testimony today from Mrs. John F. Kennedy, who was beside her husband when he was assassinated in Dallas last Nov. 22. Members went to Mrs. Kennedy's home in the Georgetown section of Washington to hear her account of the events that day.

Warren and possibly other members of the commission, it was learned, will go to Dallas Sunday for further studies. Among those he may want to question are Oswald's Russian-born widow, and Jack L. Ruby, Oswald's doomed murderer, it was reported.

Oswald spent two and one-half years in Russia. Skeptics in Europe question how any foreigner could depart from Russia with such ease as Oswald, especially with a Russian-born wife. The Europeans want to know what, if anything, the Warren commission learned on this point from the Russians.

Other skeptics question the police version that Oswald was a loner. They look to the classical examples in European assassinations where there was plotting against a person as well as a regime. These skeptics believe others besides Oswald had to be involved.

Members of Commission

A commission spokesman said that it is possible that one or more commission members may have concluded on the basis of evidence collected to date that Oswald was a loner and there was no foreign involvement. Others on the commission, however, may believe that such conclusions are impossible at this time, the spokesman said.

As the commission said in its press statement, the seven men have not sat together and reached any final conclusions, the spokesman noted.

The commission, in addition to Chief Justice Warren, is composed of Sen. Richard Russell [D., Ga.] and Sen. John Sherman Cooper [R., Ky.];

Rep. Hale Boggs [D., La.] and Rep. Gerald R. Ford [R., Mich.]; John J. McCloy, a New York businessman and former adviser to President Kennedy; and Allen W. Dulles, retired head of the central intelligence agency.
